CONDITIONS BRIGHT IN MEXICO.

Judging from press dispatches, conditions in Mexico are rapidly improving. The latest news to point to this improvement is that for the first time in five years United States troops no longer guard the international bridge connecting El Paso, Texas, with Juarez across the Rio Grande. The soldiers have been withdrawn by the order of the war department and regular customs officials alone are directing the traffic between the two countries. The news from Mexico is no longer featured with banditry, murders and revolts, but is full of the plans of the new government to pass constructive laws and to win the friendship of other nations through protecting the citizens and investments of those nations within Mexico.

It is evident that recognition is going to be accorded to the Huerta government by the United States, if one is to judge from the published letter of Secretary Clegg to Roberto Pesquiera, the agent of the Mexican government in the United States. The letter indicated that it was merely a matter of a short time until the formal announcement was made by which the southern republic would be enabled to resume full relationships with this country. It must be admitted that the attitude of the present Mexican government, headed by President Huerta, General Calles and President-elect Obregon has been progressive and that they have managed to accomplish the pacification of Villa, which was more than Carranza was able to do. Although he directed several campaigns against the bandit of the northern provinces, Obregon, the president-elect, has always been known for his broad outlook on international matters and his recognition of the rights of foreigners who might be within Mexico, and under his administration it can be hoped that banditry will be suppressed and protection afforded to all the residents, whether citizens of Mexico or of some other nation. The present government appears to be in a better position to ask recognition than any since the time of Diaz. They have a stronger grip on that nation and they are doing the one thing, the thing most necessary for recognition, in offering protection to the citizens of other nations who happen to be residing in Mexico. Recognition has been waiting for Mexico ever since the revolution which overthrew Diaz, but no Mexican government until the present regime has conducted itself in the right manner to win this recognition. It is to be hoped that the troubles of the southern republic are at last settled and that the United States will at last be relieved of the necessity of patrolling the border line between the two nations so that trade relations can be fully developed.

FRANCE RAPIDLY RECOVERING.

That the spirit of France is invincible is attested by the great strides its people have made since the armistice toward rehabilitating their country. The greatest agricultural harvest in the history of that nation is being gathered. The wheat crop of France is particularly good this year. Even in the devastated areas tractors are at work destroying the trenches and putting the land in condition for cultivation.

But with all that has been and is being accomplished, the task is so gigantic that it will require from 25 to 30 years to complete it, Premier Leygues predicts. A tenth of France was laid in ruins during the great war.

It is interesting and significant to note that the department of the Somme, the scene of the terrific offensives of 1916 and 1918 and the German retreat of 1917, where even the trees were cut down, this year produced enough wheat to supply the whole department, and in addition sent more than 1,000,000 bushels to the department of the Aisne. Small wonder that the people with such courage and resiliency should fight and endure so sublimely in the greatest war of all time.

A MESSAGE TO OUR FRONT-PAGE FRIENDS.

This is a little message to the friend who asked us to "please put this on the front page." Sometimes this friend is a man, sometimes a woman, and even the young people are getting the habit. It's always a good indication when such a request is made. It means that the writer is interested in his or her subject. It shows appreciation of position in a newspaper and a modest desire to accept the best. Sometimes, however, it might be added, the choice is unwise. There are news features which are expected on the front page, and there are others that are not expected on that page, but have their own positions on other pages.

Some of these friends who make these requests are some of our town's very good housekeepers. They would "have a fit" if some one left the dishpan in the living room. They would have another if they did not find the dishpan in the kitchen, where it belongs. We in the print shops are a little bit the same way. We have a page for display news, another for locals, personals and church notes, and others for editorial matters and news of surrounding communities. Yes, indeed, now that we all come to think of it, we agree that we don't want everything on the front page, after all.

—Warwick Advertiser

The recent election in Nevada resulted in a number of very surprising upsets in the pre-election "dope." In White Pine county, which has been one of the Democratic strongholds of this state, the courthouse was cleaned up by its majority of Democrats and Republicans elected in their places. The sheriff-elect in that county is a saloon-man, and won by a nice majority over his Democratic opponent. The result of the election in that county shows that the people there are disgusted with the bone-dry law, which is working a hardship through the amount of adulterated jackass whisky which is said to be on the market.

From all sides in the election last week come evidences that the people of this country want a change in the bone-dry law. The voters of California rejected by a large majority the law proposed for the enforcement of prohibition by the legislature and in the eastern states a number of similar laws were defeated. These votes merely serve to show the trend of popular opinion against the present enforcement of the prohibition amendment.
